The Canberra was torpedoed by the Japanese, causing the ship to have to be towed in for repairs. I think the reason the Japanese were anxious to sink or cripple the Canberra was that the Navy had only 3 other heavy cruisers. However, the order was to tow the ship around in the ocean to try to bring the Japanese Air Force out for a battle. The Japanese did not take the bait so the ship went to Pearl Harbor for repairs.

The first time I knew what happened, I received an envelop containing a sheet of paper with a drawn kangaroo with a big bandage on its tail and no other clue. I'll admit it took me a little time to interpret the message. Then, I remembered that his ship had an Australian name and I knew my brother had survived the attack." Sara D. Hall

He often designed and built what he needed in the way of equipment in the feed mill. He worked long hours during the days of the depression and made a good living for his family. He lived at the edge of Williamston, SC. and was on the end of the electric power line. About 1933 he purchased a RCA Radio with an amplifier. To this he connected a single wire which he ran for miles out into the country where there was no power. He would connect a speaker to the wire for all who subscribed. At one time he had over 700 speakers on this system and the fee for using the speaker was $.50 a month. He converted one room of his home into a studio and live programs could be heard by all on the line. Churches and Gospel singers where the most frequent users.

He was about 5 ft. 11 inches tall and his average weight was about 185. He was in excellent health until his retirement at age 62. He had a heart attack a few years later and suffered from heart problems until his death at age 82. .
