George L. Schrimpf

Company B (Palmetto Riflemen),
4th South Carolina Volunteers (Infantry), C.S.A., and Company C, Palmetto Sharpshooters, C.S.A.

George Schrimpf was born in Maryland in 1840, the son of Prussian immigrants. According to oral tradition, George's father died when his son was very young, and his mother remarried. The stepfather then placed George in an apprenticeship with a blacksmith---an occupation that did not appeal to the rather frail twelve-year-old boy. Thus George ran away from his home in Maryland and eventually made his way to Anderson District, South Carolina.

After the Civil War broke out in 1861, the young man enlisted in the Palmetto Rifleman in Anderson, South Carolina. That unit entered service of the Confederate States Army in April of 1861 and was designated Company B, 4th South Carolina Volunteers. At the expiration of his one-year enlistment, George re-enlisted in Company C of the select Palmetto Sharpshooters, which was commanded by Colonel Micah Jenkins, who was a native of Edisto Island, South Carolina, and who was later killed during the Wilderness Campaign in Virginia.

Private George Schrimpf was wounded several times during the war, but the most serious wound occurred on August 30, 1862, when a ball entered his back and lodged in his body. This Confederate soldier was then given a furlough in October of 1862, but he was back on duty in March of 1863 and served in the Confederate States Army until the Civil War ended, still carrying the ball in his body.

After the war, George Schrimpf went to work farming for a former officer of the Confederate States Army, Lt. Col. T. L. Mattison of Anderson. While plowing one day in May, 1867, George felt the ball in his body drop in his abdomen and soon began to suffer great discomfort. He visited the medical doctor and begged him to remove the ball. Reluctantly, Dr. Alexander Evins agreed to operate, and he found the ball in the Confederate veteran's bladder. The ball was removed and then sent to Washington, D. C., where it was the subject of a case study in the field of medicine. Doctors theorized that the ball had rested between the walls of George Schrimpf's bladder all those years until finally working its way through the lining. Today, the ball that was removed from George's body remains in the Armed Forces Medical Museum in Washington, D. C.

George Schrimpf married and had eight children---four sons and four daughters. He continued to live and to farm in Anderson County until his death in 1923 at the age of eighty-three years. His grandson, James Crowther, presently resides on land that once belonged to George Schrimpf.
